Box No. III Non-establishment of opinion with regard to novelty, inventive step and industrial applicability

1. The questions whether the claimed invention appears to be novel, to involve an inventive step (to be non-obvious), or to be industrially applicable have not been examined in respect of:

☐ the entire international application,

☒ claims Nos. 14-15

because:

☒ the said international application, or the said claims Nos. 14-15 relate to the following subject matter which does not require an international preliminary examination (specify):

see separate sheet

☐ the description, claims or drawings (indicate particular elements below) or said claims Nos. are so unclear that no meaningful opinion could be formed (specify):

☐ the claims, or said claims Nos. are so inadequately supported by the description that no meaningful opinion could be formed.

☐ no international search report has been established for the said claims Nos.

☐ the nucleotide and/or amino acid sequence listing does not comply with the standard provided for in Annex C of the Administrative Instructions in that:

the written form

☐ has not been furnished

☐ does not comply with the standard

the computer readable form

☐ has not been furnished

☐ does not comply with the standard

☐ the tables related to the nucleotide and/or amino acid sequence listing, if in computer readable form only, do not comply with the technical requirements provided for in Annex C-bis of the Administrative Instructions.

☐ See separate sheet for further details

Re Item III

Non-establishment of opinion with regard to novelty, inventive step and industrial applicability

III.1 Since claims 14-15 may encompass methods of treatment of the human body (Rule 67.1(iv) PCT), no opinion will be formulated with respect to the industrial applicability of the subject-matter of these claims (Article 34(4)(a)(I) PCT).

III.2 For the assessment of said claims 14-15 on the question whether they are industrially applicable, no unified criteria exist in the PCT Contracting States. The patentability can also be dependent upon the formulation of the claims. The EPO, for example, does not recognize as industrially applicable the subject-matter of claims to the use of a compound in medical treatment, but may allow, however, claims to a known compound for first use in medical treatment and the use of such a compound for the manufacture of a medicament for a new medical treatment.

V.2 Novelty and inventive step

V.2.1 All of documents D1-D10, alone or in combination, disclose that iron, zinc, B vitamins and polyunsaturated acids aid in the development of the cognitive performance of children. However, none of the cited prior art documents discloses compositions where the iron to zinc ratio is larger than 2. Thus, the claimed subject-matter is new (Art. 33 (2) PCT).

V.2.1 The current application does not mention any unexpected effect linked to the selection of the specific iron to zinc ratio. Moreover, the other additional features found in claims 1-15, such as the selection of specific bioavailable iron and zinc sources, or the selection of sources of polyunsaturated fatty acids having higher levels of DHA than EPA, are obvious options for the skilled person having knowledge of D1, D2, or of D3-D9 in conjunction with D10 (for more details, the reader is referred to the International Search Report). Thus, the current set of claims does not involve an inventive step in the sense of Art. 33 (3) PCT.

V.3 The subject-matter of claims 1-13 is industrially applicable in the sense of Art. 33 (4) PCT.
